Tip Check the Web for free tutorials on using Photoshop. Many free websites have online tutorials that teach you how to use Photoshop. * _Adobe Photoshop CS_ tutorial DVD: This DVD is for beginners. The DVD version of this book includes this tutorial in the DVD case. _Adobe Photoshop CS: the Missing Manual_ includes the DVD tutorial in the text. If you plan to use Photoshop's brand of _layer masks_, you need to be aware of a couple things. First, they are not as easy to use as layers in other image-editing programs. For example, you can't just remove a layer and use the same mask as another layer. This is one reason that Photoshop's masking features are so powerful. Second, if you use Photoshop with other programs, when you export your files to those programs, the masking disappears. So you have to make sure you don't use Photoshop with other programs. If you use Adobe's _Bridge_, a sophisticated image-management program, it can export your files as layered Photoshop files. Otherwise, Photoshop's default export can create a file with a series of layers that include images in the non-transparency regions of the original. So it's a mixed bag: If you don't use Bridge or it doesn't export the file as a layered PSD file, you should use layers, so you can handle all the file's editing within Photoshop and not be limited

Let's take a look at how to edit images, create your own images, make memes and share other people's art. Our guide uses the latest and stable version of Adobe Photoshop Elements (13) on macOS Mojave (Catalina 10.14) but it's the same for previous versions of Photoshop Elements and Photoshop. You can download Photoshop Elements from the official website here. It's free to use as long as you keep it activated and if you have a subscription for Adobe Creative Cloud you can also install Photoshop Elements without spending any money. How to Edit an Image Open an image The easiest way to edit images is to open an image in Photoshop Elements. You can do so from the Applications or Window folder, depending on where you installed Photoshop Elements. Open Photoshop Elements Hold down the Shift and Alt keys to minimize all the menus and start the editing process. Change the image size Choose one of the available sizes for the image. The image can be smaller than your monitor to save space but it's not recommended for photos or images with large details. There are two options in the window. If you're using a Mac, choose Image Size, and if you're on Windows, choose From Selected Sizes. You can also choose the actual size using the DPI (dots per inch) or the percentage value, depending on the aspect ratio. If you choose 100% as your size, it means that the image will be scaled so that it will take the entire screen. You can also use the percentage value to find a suitable size for the image, for example, 96% for 3:4 or 75% for 4:5. Enlarge or shrink You can stretch or shrink the image to fit the size. To enlarge the image, you simply select it and drag it to the left, and to shrink the image, you drag it to the right. New image size When you resize an image, Photoshop Elements will create a copy of the original. You can delete the original image or keep it to explore other options, such as cropping, rotating and changing the color balance. Stretch and rotate You can rotate an image 90 degrees, 180 degrees or 270 degrees. To rotate the image, select it and rotate it using the rotation tool. If you want to make it easier to rotate the image, you can find the command 388ed7b0c7

Q: How do I keep Devise handling form submissions without ignoring the form values I'm using Devise for authentication. So far so good. On my edit page I have this form resource_name, :url => registration_path(resource_name)) do |f| %> "btn btn-large btn-primary" %> And my registrations controller looks like this class RegistrationsController "Signed up success" end end Instead of saving the stuff in my form, the form is just being ignored. [4] pry(main)> resource.name => nil [5] pry(main)> resource.errors => {:name=>["can't be blank"]} What am I doing wrong? A: The reason it is not saving is because the line does not have an id on the resource. resource_name, :url => registration_path(resource_name)) do |f| %> Resource has no id. This is the reason you cannot save it. Harvard Women's Health Watch The Harvard Women's Health Watch (HWHW) is a non-profit medical student organization

What's New In Adobe Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.3.1)?

Wednesday, June 27, 2014 Cutting out a tree, without getting wet? Sadly, this morning I've lost the internet connection on my (virtual) machine. Currently the problem is really hard to solve. The first solution, which I used before, is to turn it off/on again. Then, I did a Google search and got the following answer: "The best way I have found is if you click 'my computer' and then 'properties', then 'local area network connection' click settings > advanced, then 'sharing level'. Then right click on the folder you want to access and click share folder and click yes. Do this again for your shared files and printers and you should be able to access them." One more thing, you have to share the "C: Drive" between the two computers. Otherwise it won't work. Another, very funny solution, is the following: "Go to the folder you wish to share, right-click, properties and under the Sharing tab, click Advanced Sharing. Click Advanced Sharing and under the permissions section, click Edit Permissions. For Owner, click Edit Permissions and then click change." If you have never shared a folder before, it's quite easy. For others, beware. You're in the "sharing" mode. "You may have to use 'insecure' when you're finished, so that someone doesn't try to use your box like a server to do their bidding." Another solution: instead of using the "sharing" (or "sharing") option in the other side, you can use the following command line when logged in on the VirtualBox side: You can share folders, printers and the "C:" drive from VirtualBox to Ubuntu. By the way, I've got a lot of little programs in my "C:\Program Files\virtualbox" folder, which made me think of the following: There's a cool Virtualbox webcam viewer, which lets you see what your guest sees when you run it, from the host side. Very useful when you want to see your guest or your host desktop for some reason. For some reason, it's not possible to run the VBox window as a Windows application. Or maybe there is a nice alternative, which I'm not aware of? :) 3 comments: Bonjour Aurore, Very great post. Do you know if it is possible to share a folder in Windows
